About Boston Collegiate Charter School

Boston Collegiate Charter School, originally South Boston Harbor Academy, was founded in 1998 and has since grown from serving 120 students in grades five through seven to now serving 700 students in grades five through 12. In 2004, after moving to its current location in Dorchester, the school changed its name to Boston Collegiate Charter School and simplified its mission: to prepare each student for college. Since, then Boston Collegiate Charter School has worked hard to earn its reputation as one of the highest performing, non-selective schools in the state:

- 76% of Boston Collegiate Charter School alumni have either graduated from or are currently enrolled in college; the majority of these students are or will be the first in their families to earn a college degree.
- Graduates of Boston Collegiate Charter School currently attend some of the most prestigious colleges in the country, including Amherst, Brown, Dartmouth, Harvard, and every school within the University of Massachusetts state school system.
